InterDev Hires Technology Pro Mark Aston to Head
New Jacksonville Office

ALPHARETTA, GA – April 5, 2012 – InterDev, an Atlanta-area provider of managed IT and security services, today announced that it has hired technology veteran Mark Aston as the Branch Manager for a new office in Jacksonville opening in April. Aston is deeply engaged in the technology community and currently serves as President of the Jacksonville Information Technology Council, a forum of the Jacksonville Regional Chamber of Commerce.

"Mark has strong experience in developing customer and prospect relationships and strategic vendor partnerships," said InterDev CEO Gary Nichols. "He's also managed IT projects through deployment to ensure total customer satisfaction. This unique combination of sales experience, customer service leadership and technology expertise made him the perfect candidate to head InterDev's first branch office in Florida."

Immediately before joining InterDev, Aston served as Director of Business Development with Akos Technologies. Aston has worked in both the telecommunications and technology industries, providing him with a broad knowledge base that will form the foundation for his work with InterDev's current and future customers. In addition to his service with the Jacksonville Information Technology Council, Aston is on the board of the First Coast Business Leadership Network.

"I look forward to applying my business and management experience to help InterDev grow its new office and develop beneficial relationship with its new Florida customers. InterDev's focus on IT security, excellent reputation and dedication to total customer satisfaction drew me to the firm, and I am 100% committed to extending that standing at this new branch," stated Aston.
